The image displays three glass vessels against a plain white background. The central vessel is tall and pear-shaped with a light blue body and a darker blue neck. To its left is a smaller, wider vessel with a brownish-purple hue. To its right is a medium-sized vessel with a light purple body and a slightly flared neck. Each vessel has a smooth, glossy finish and a small opening at the top.

Two tall, slender vases are shown against a plain white background. Both vases have a clear glass base and a blue upper section. The vase on the left, labeled LV1951A-1, has a blue section that tapers slightly towards the base. The vase on the right, labeled LV1951B-1, has a blue section that is wider at the top and tapers slightly towards the base. The blue sections are made of a translucent material, possibly glass or plastic, and have a smooth, glossy finish.
